

SEWICKLEY ACADEMY

1983 Sewickley Academy
Yearbook

Volume XXVII

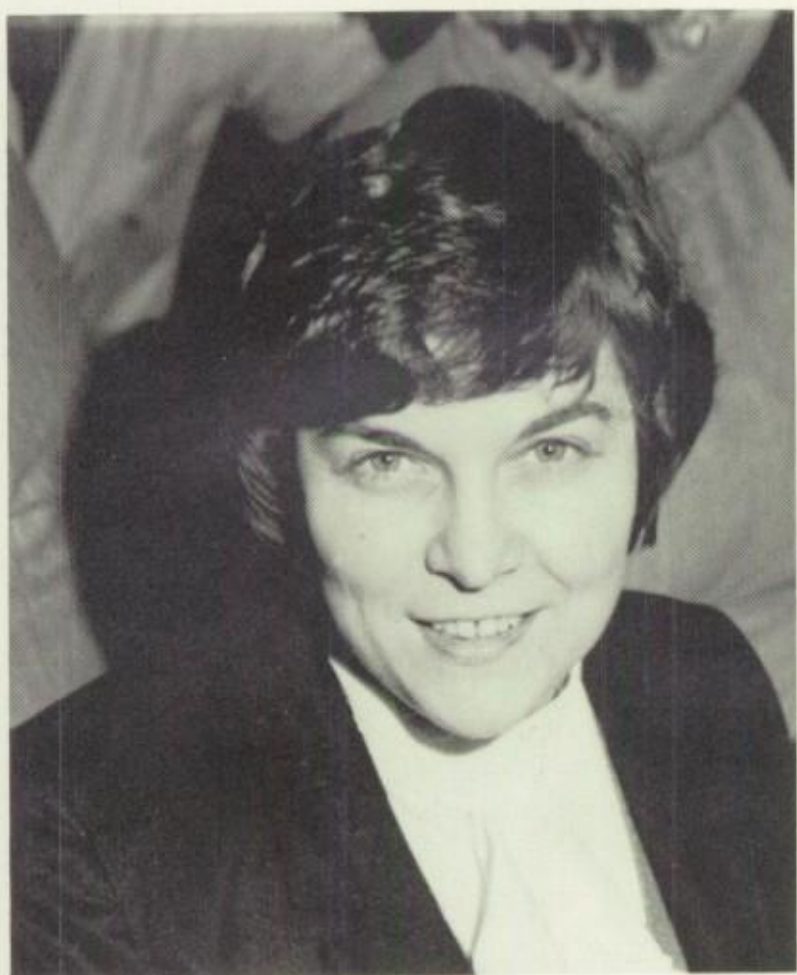

This year, Sewickley Academy's melody of tradition was enhanced by the harmony of change through new students, faculty, and most importantly, by the installation of our new friend and headmaster, Douglas O. McClure. This yearbook is an expression of ourselves, through words and pictures, in the year 1982-1983.

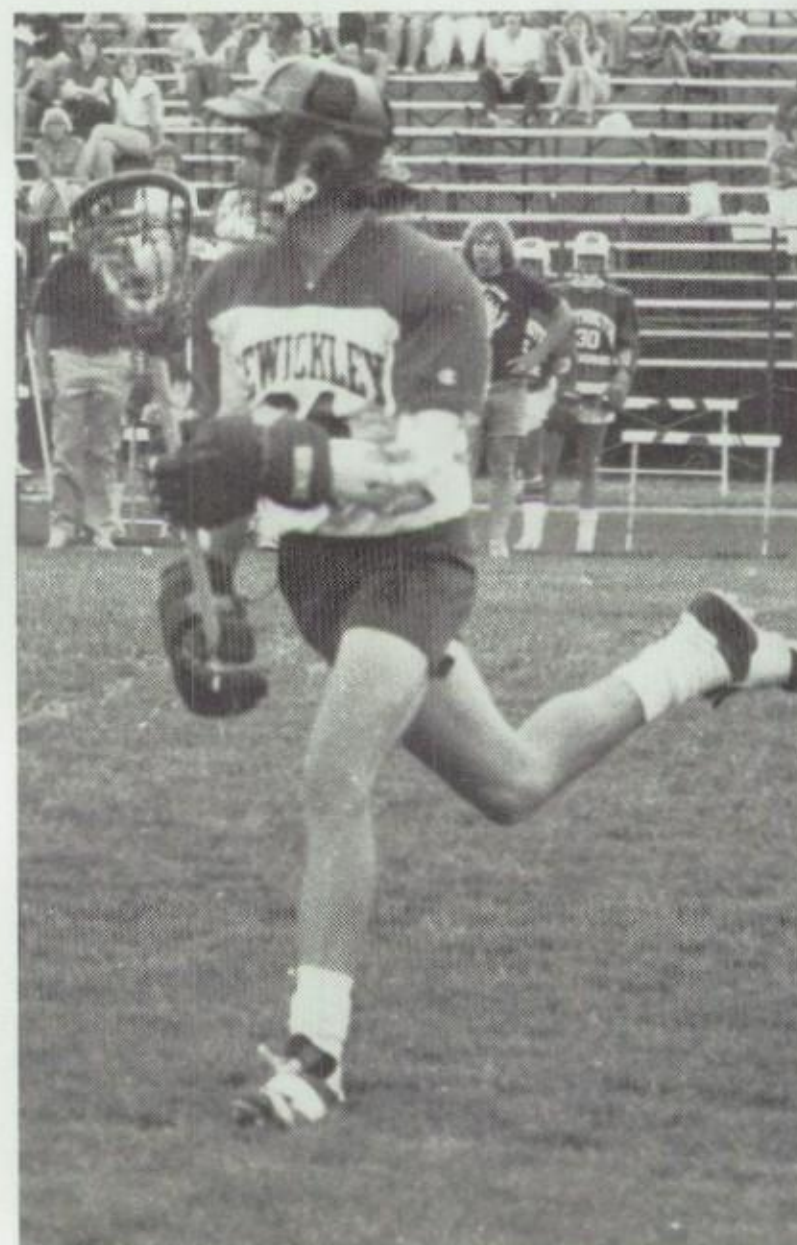

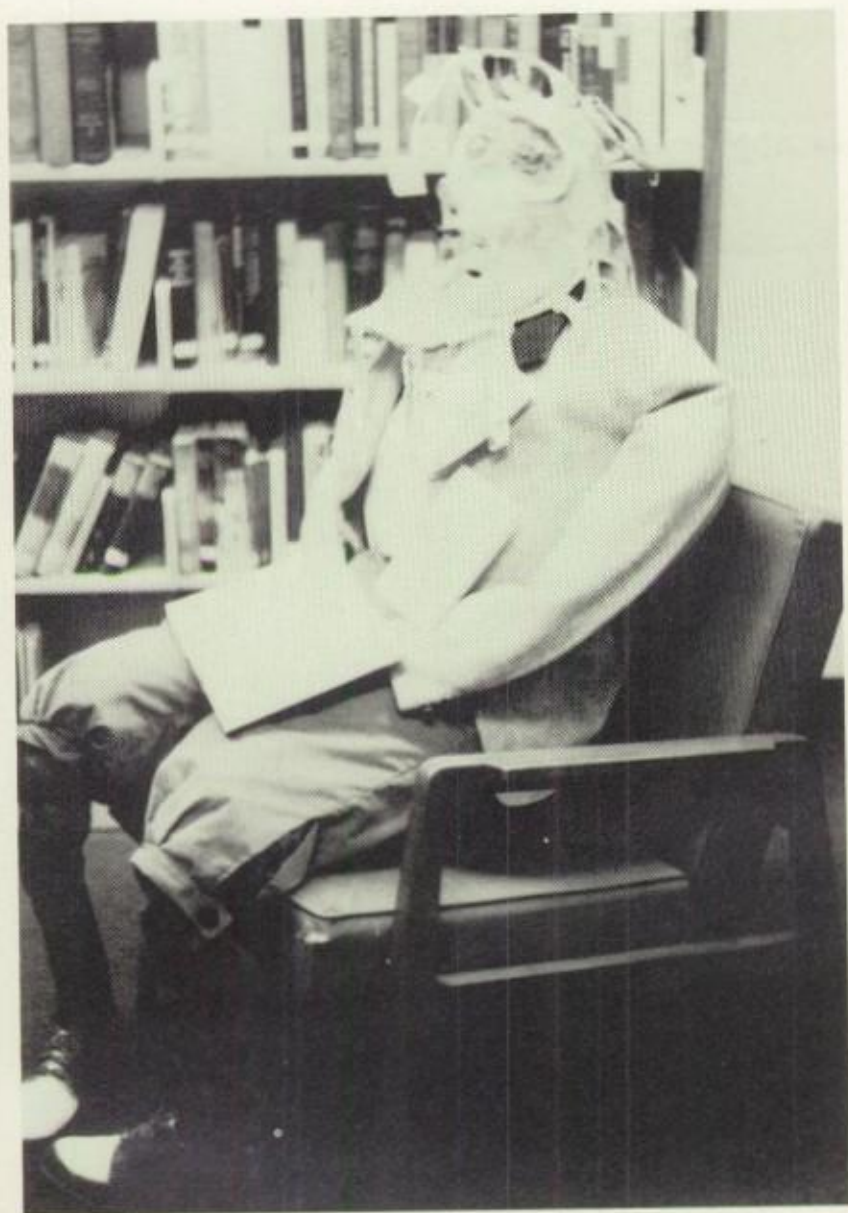

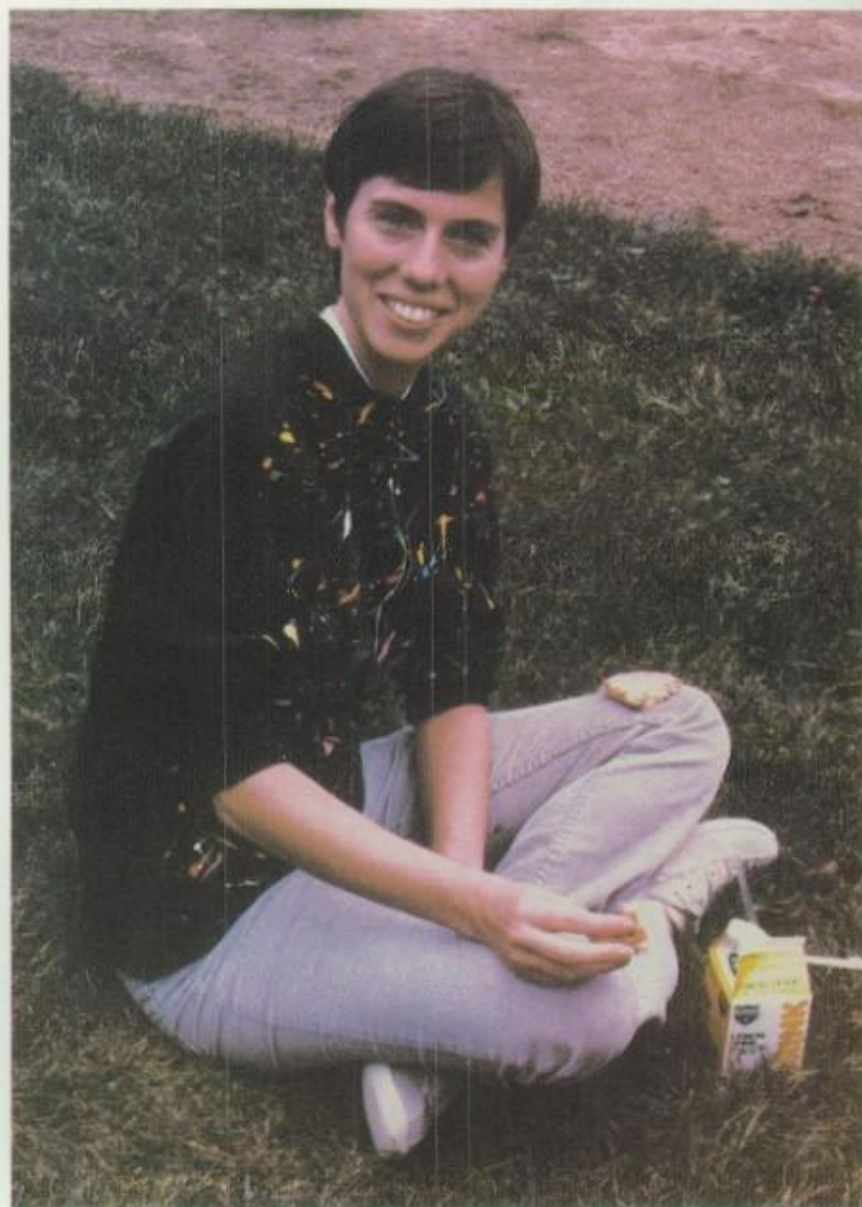

We are happy to dedicate the Sewickley Academy 1983 yearbook to four people who exemplify this year's theme of music. Each, with his own patience and understanding, has enhanced student life by the use of both song and dance. The first teacher has done everything for the school from putting on musicals to teaching rhythm games to young students. Though somewhat of a newcomer, the second has managed to develop strong choral groups in both the Middle and Senior Schools. The third started Sewickley Academy's first band and now conducts the Jazz Ensemble. Finally, the last has directed countless musicals and has taught dance classes since he first began teaching. With our deepest affection and appreciation, we present this book to the following people: Miss Jacqueline Blender, Mr. James Fritz, Mr. Jean Wilmouth, and Mr. Mario Melodia.

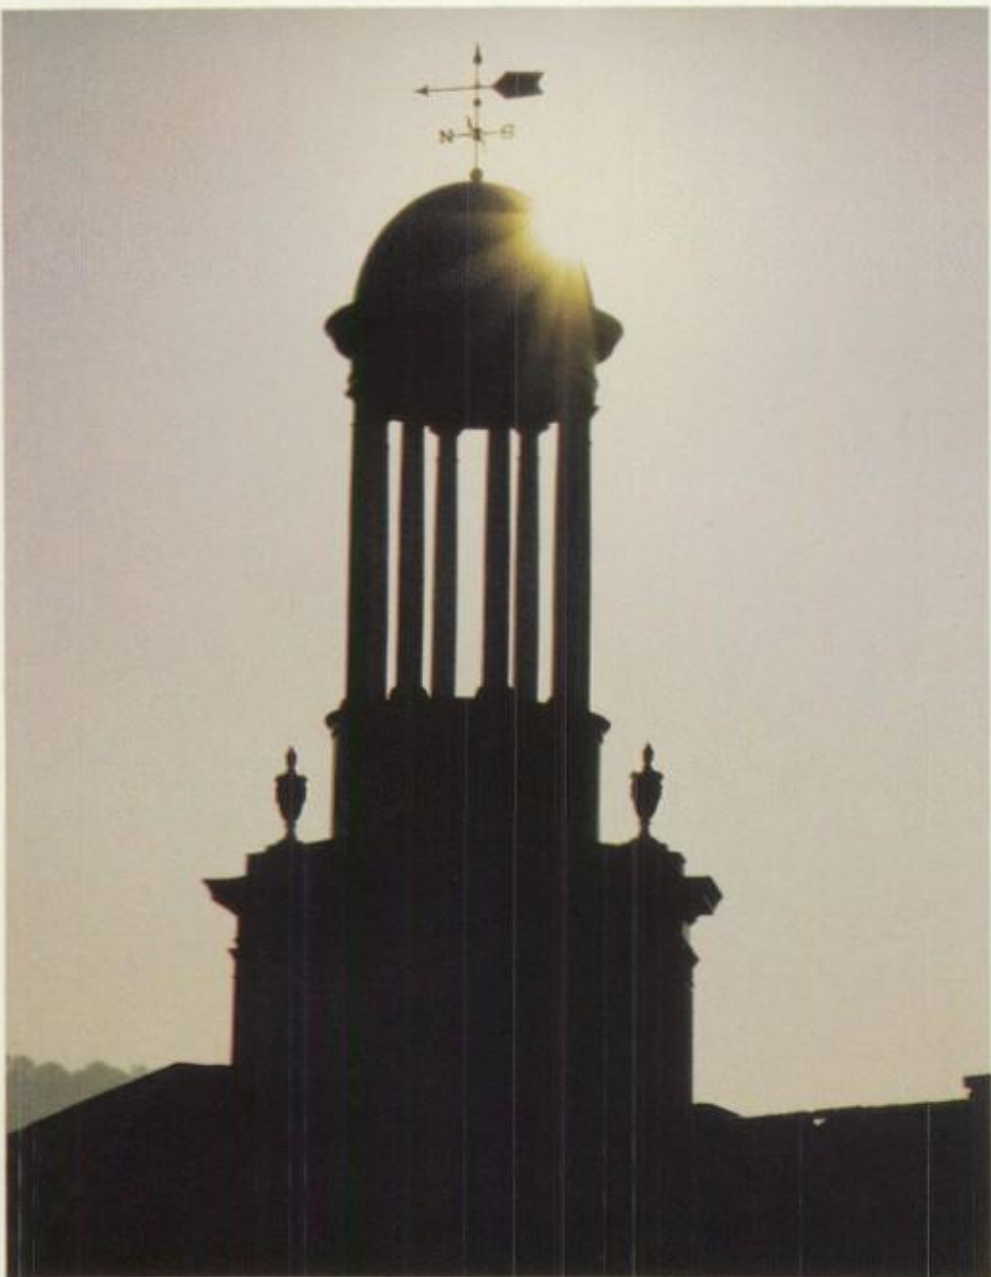

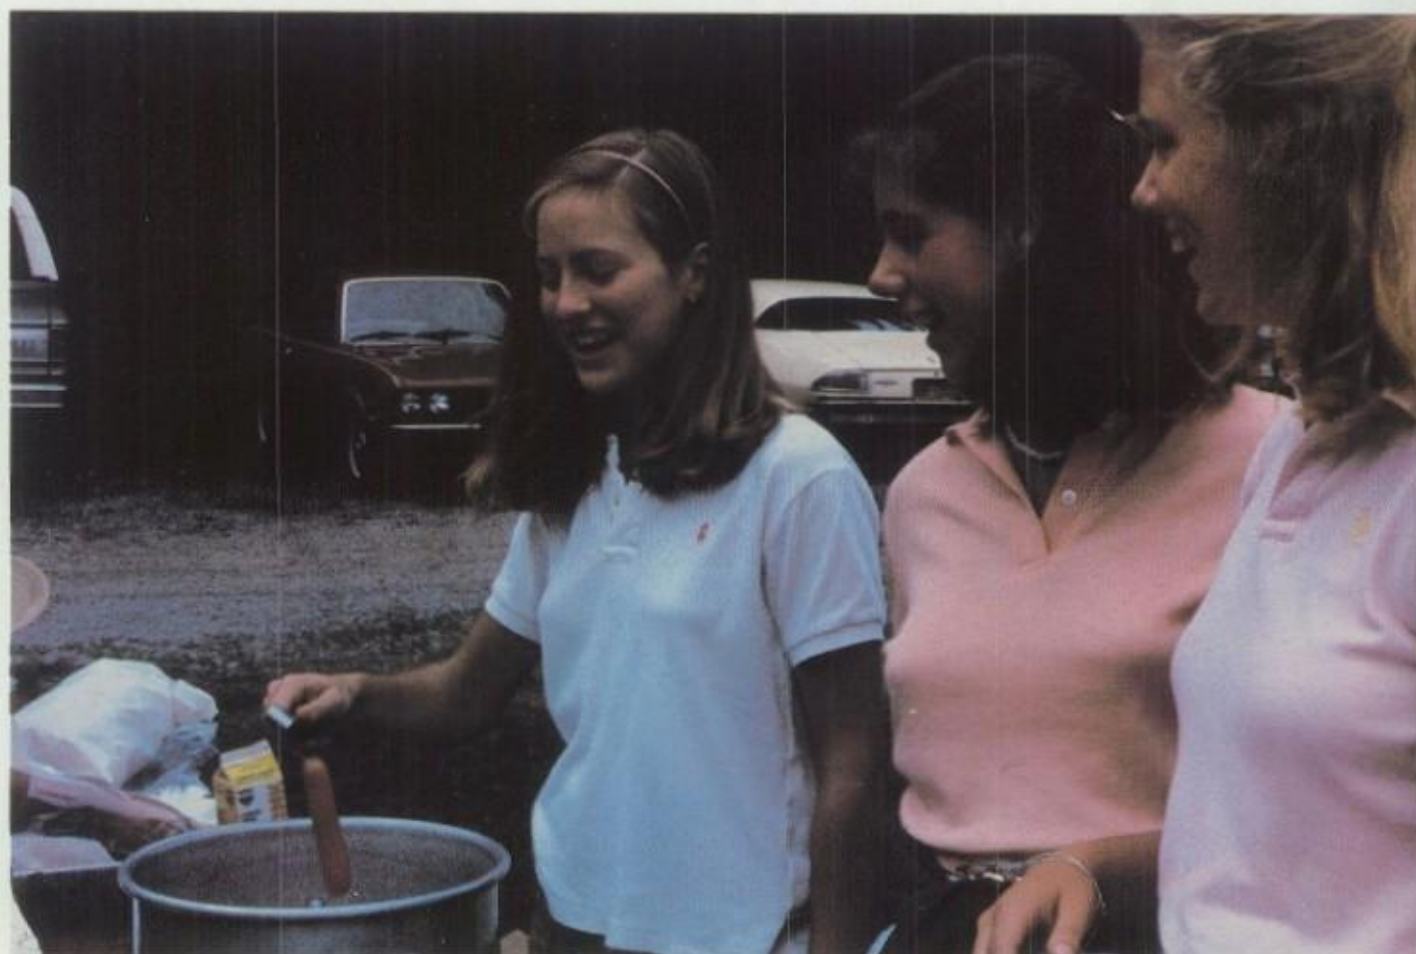

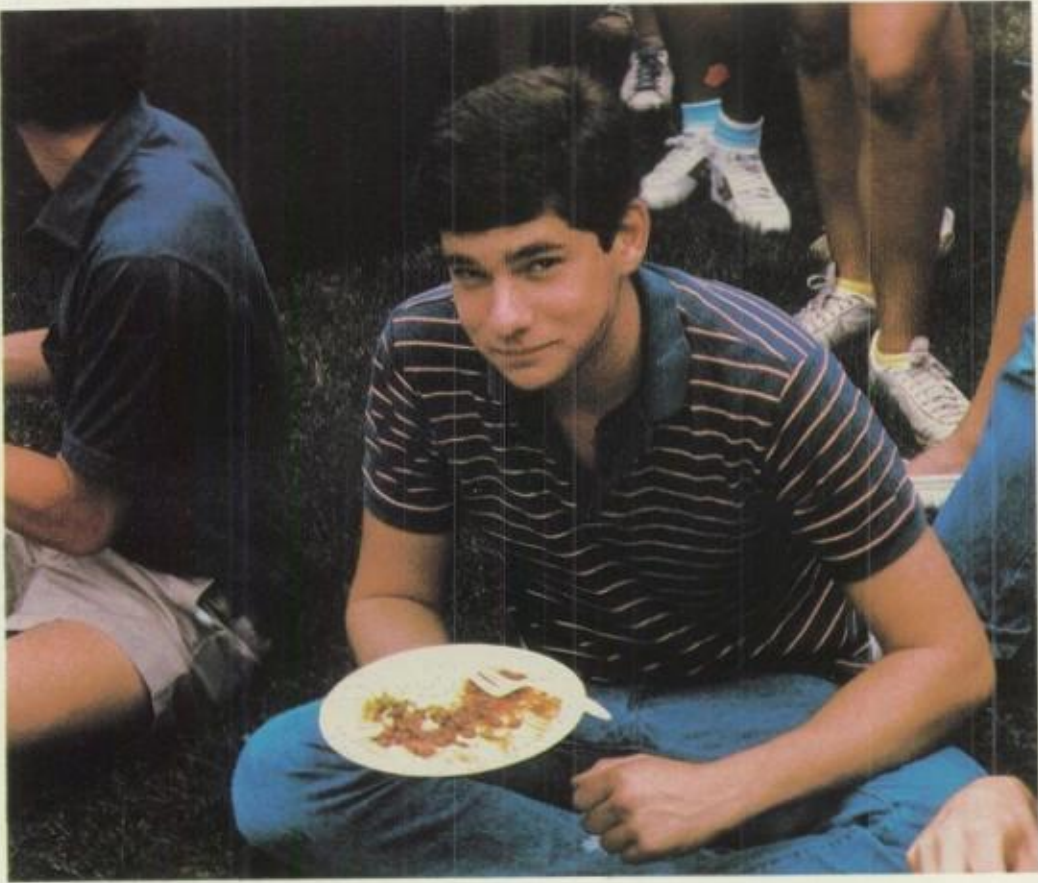

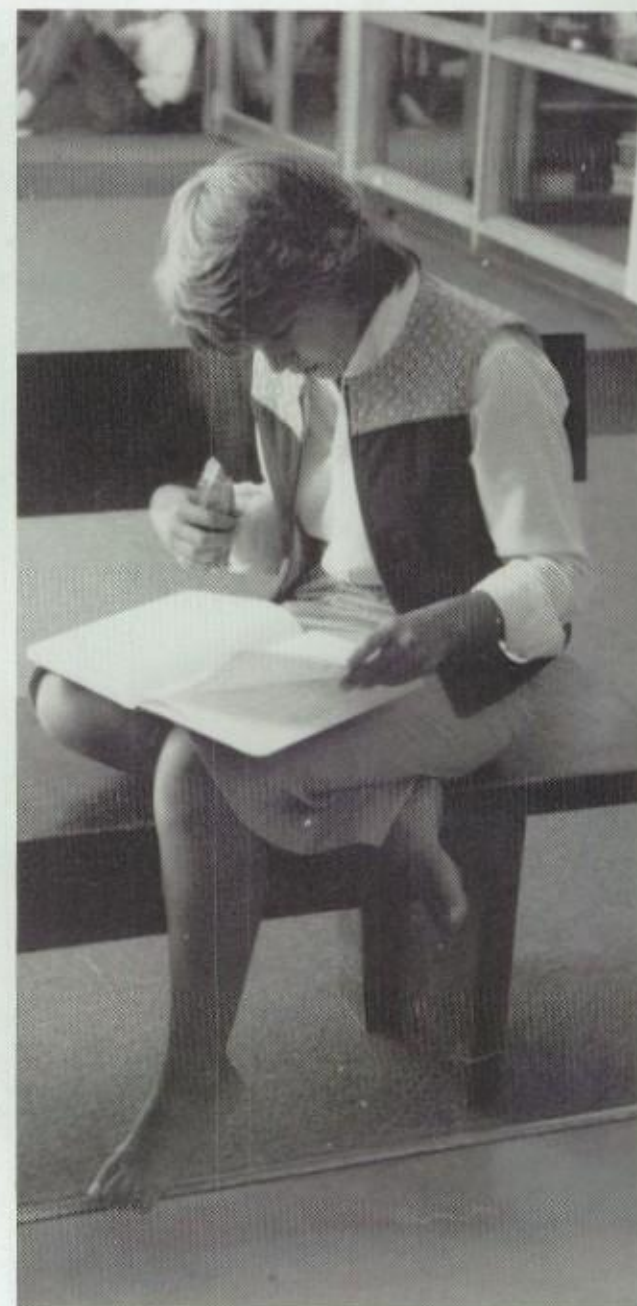

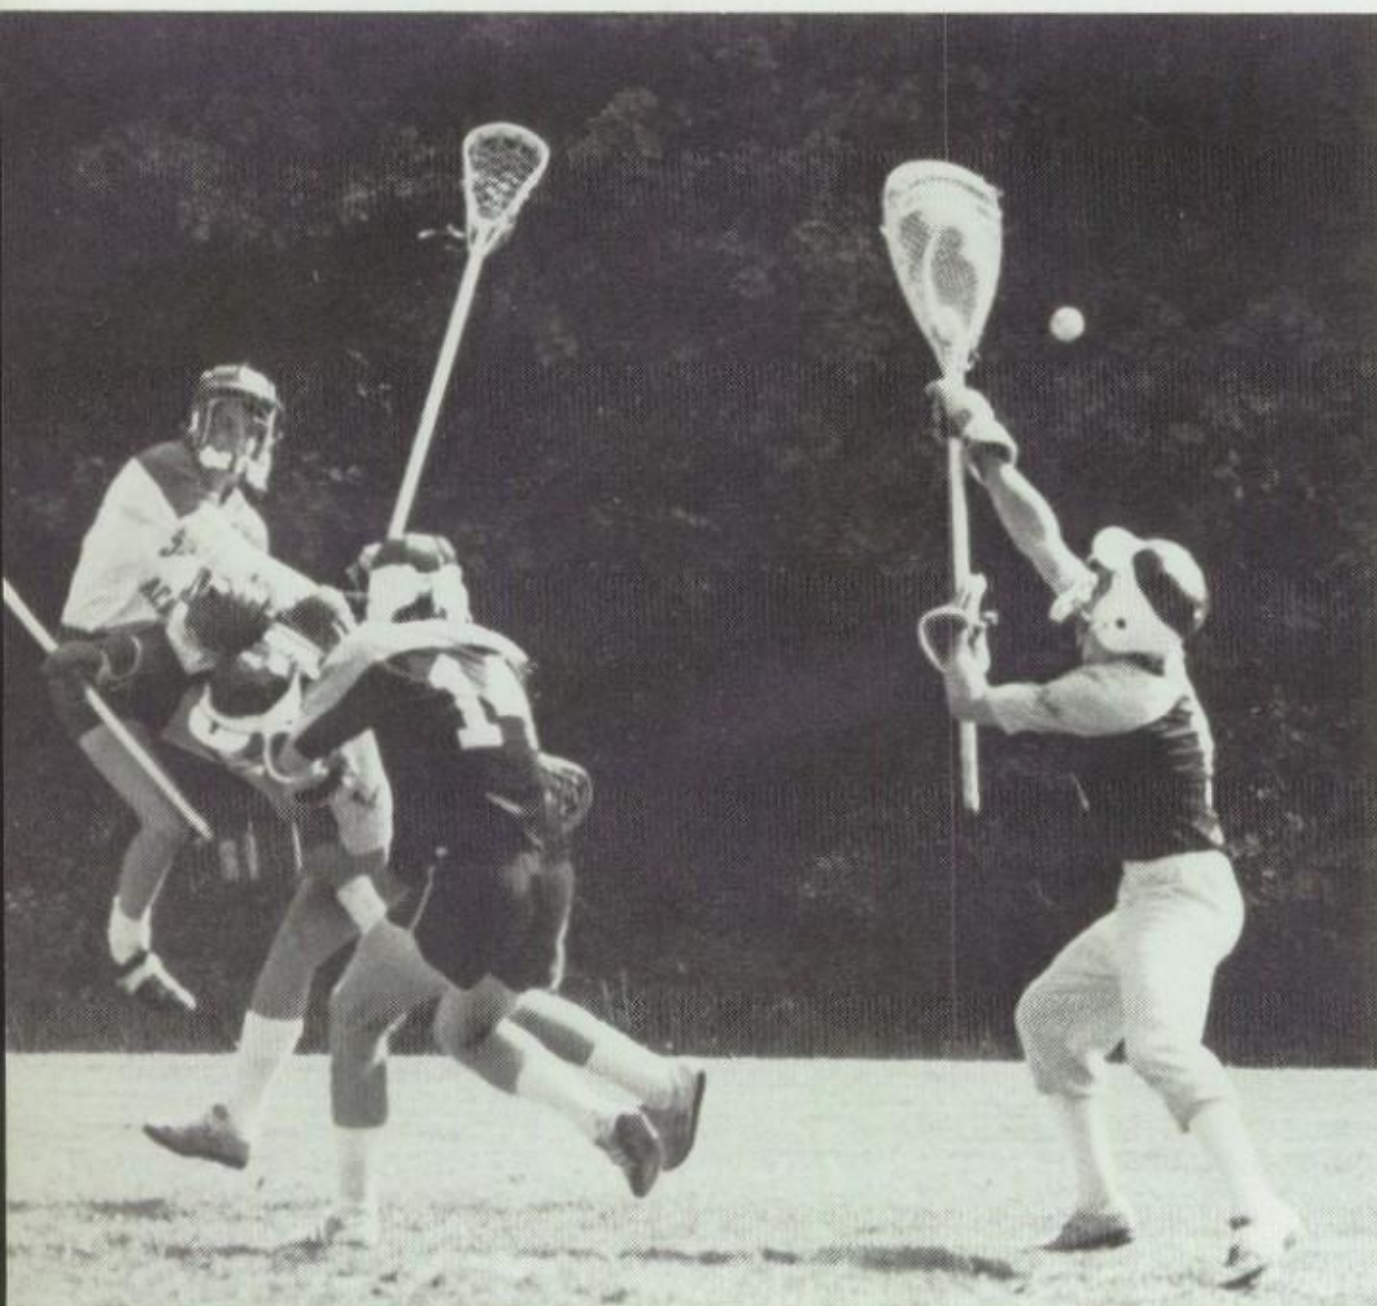

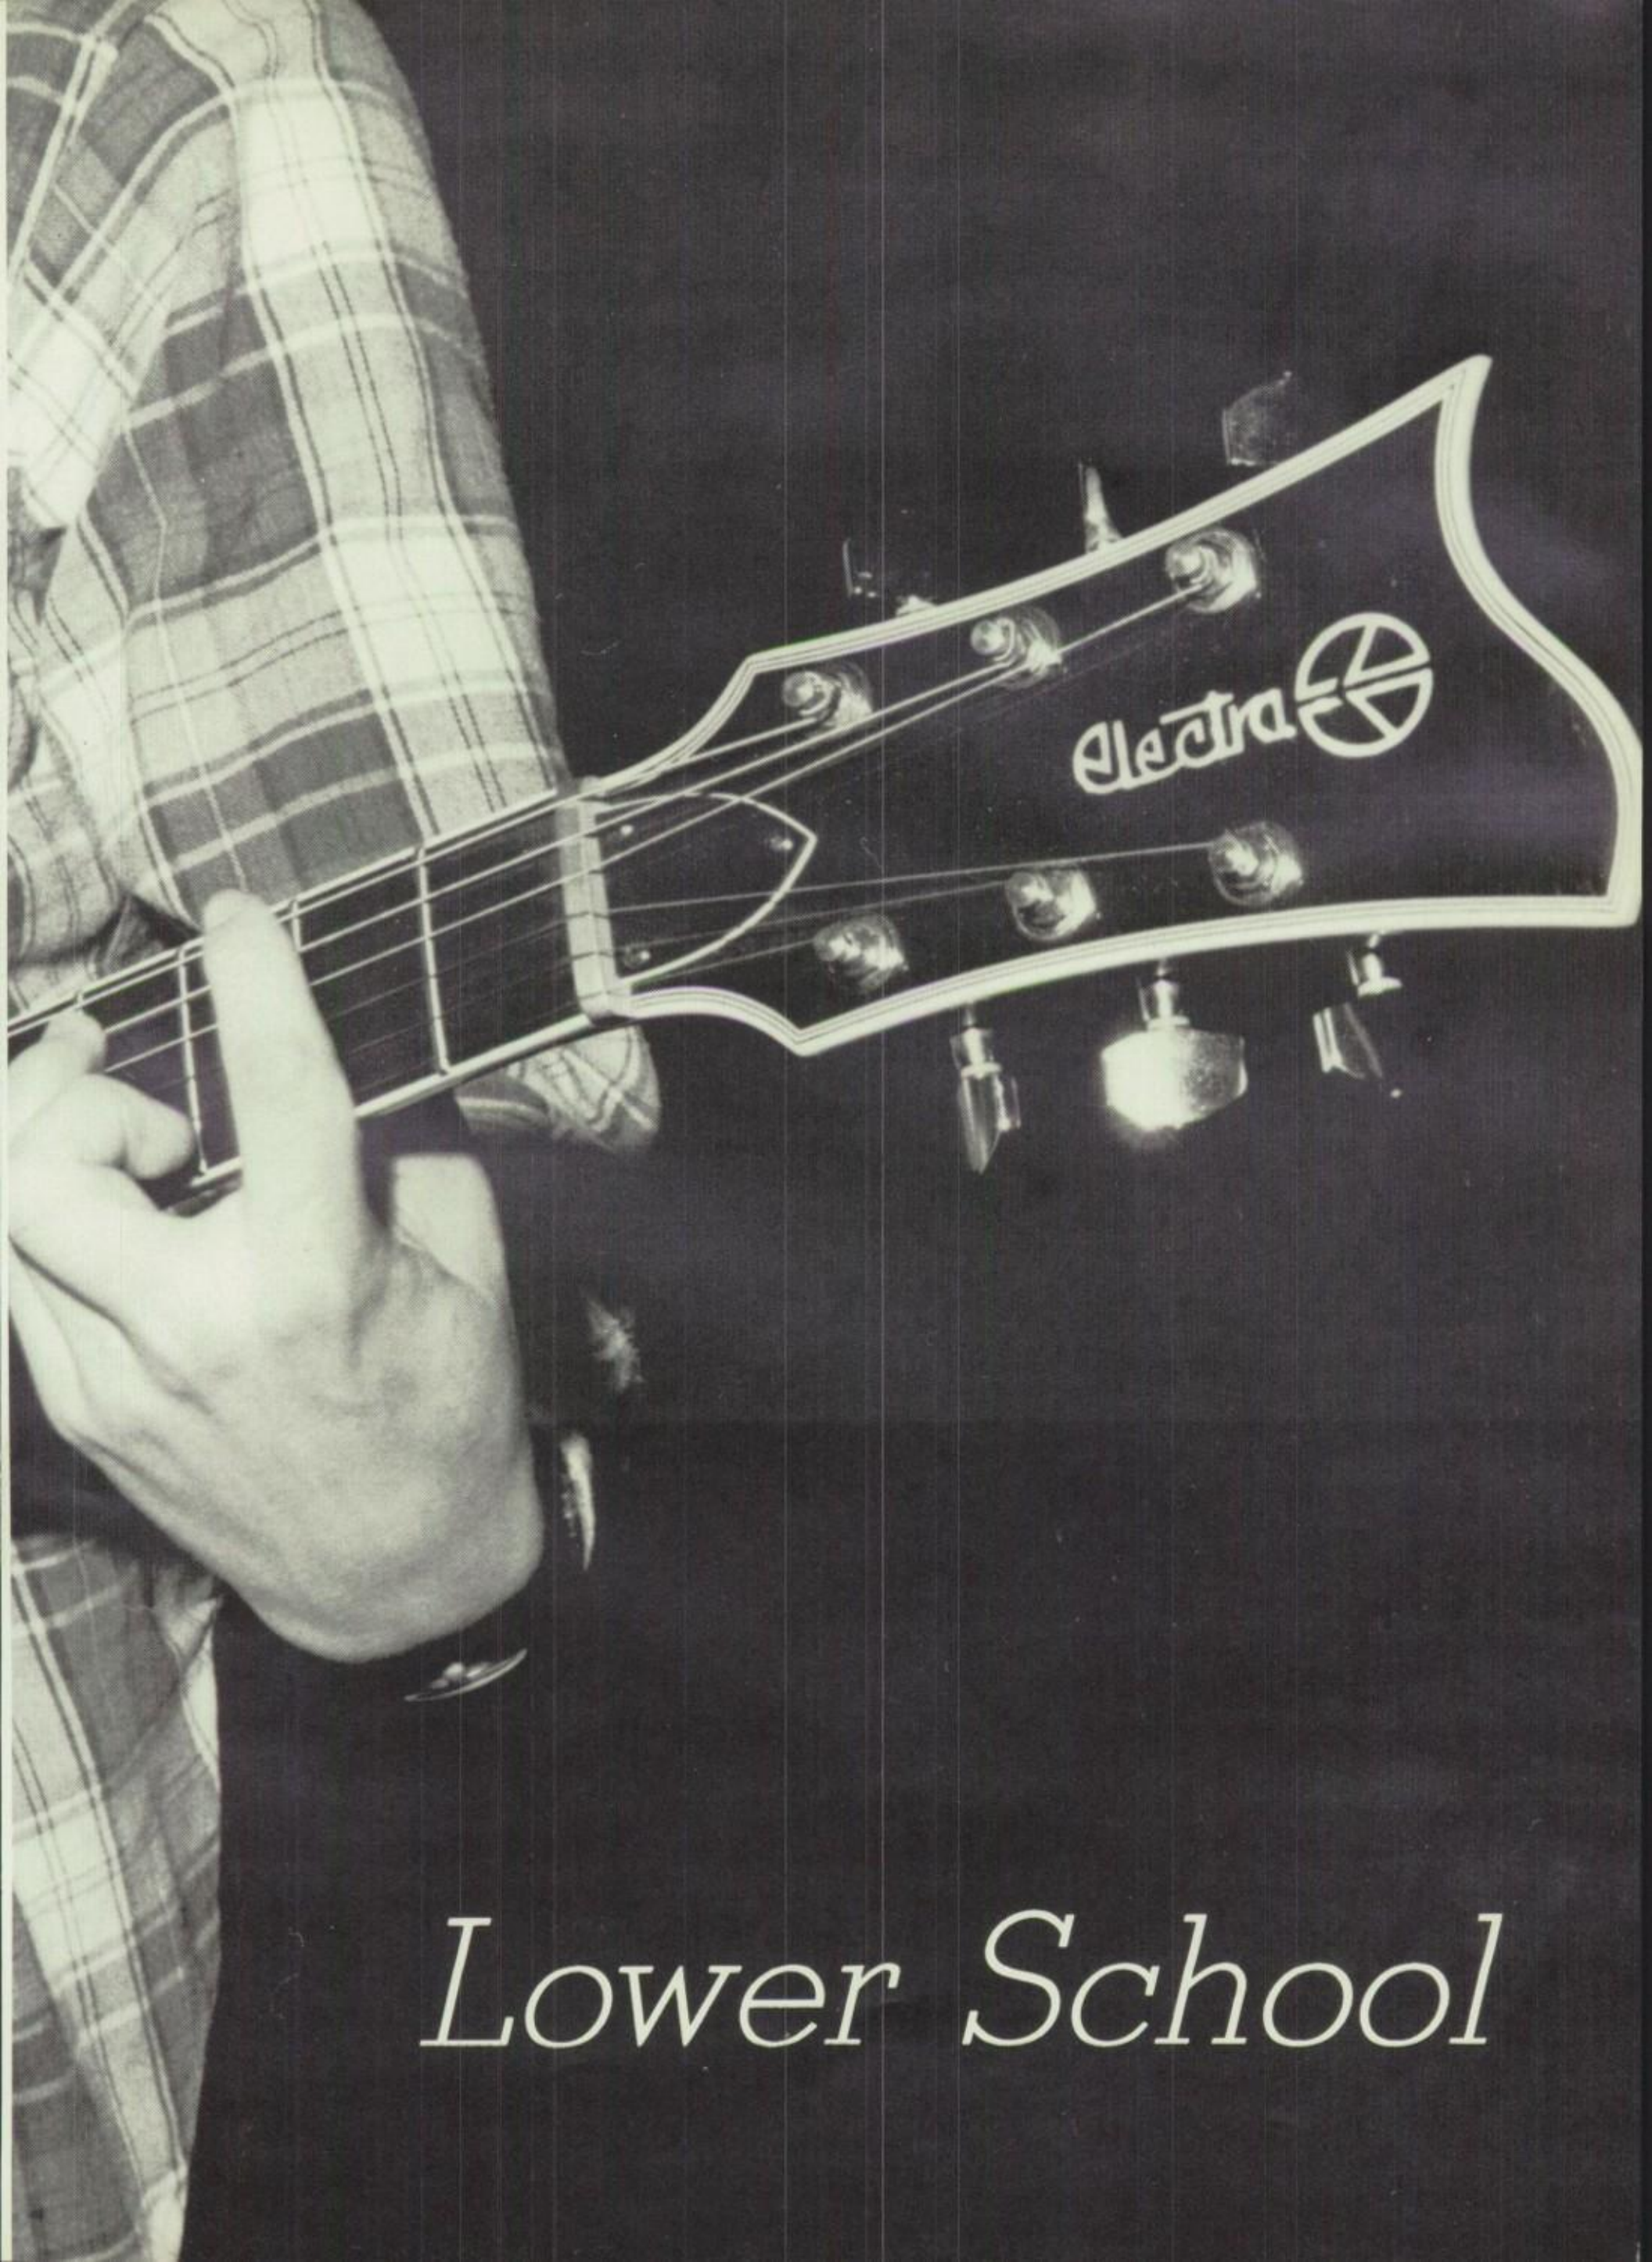

Lower School

Let's Start In The Beginning

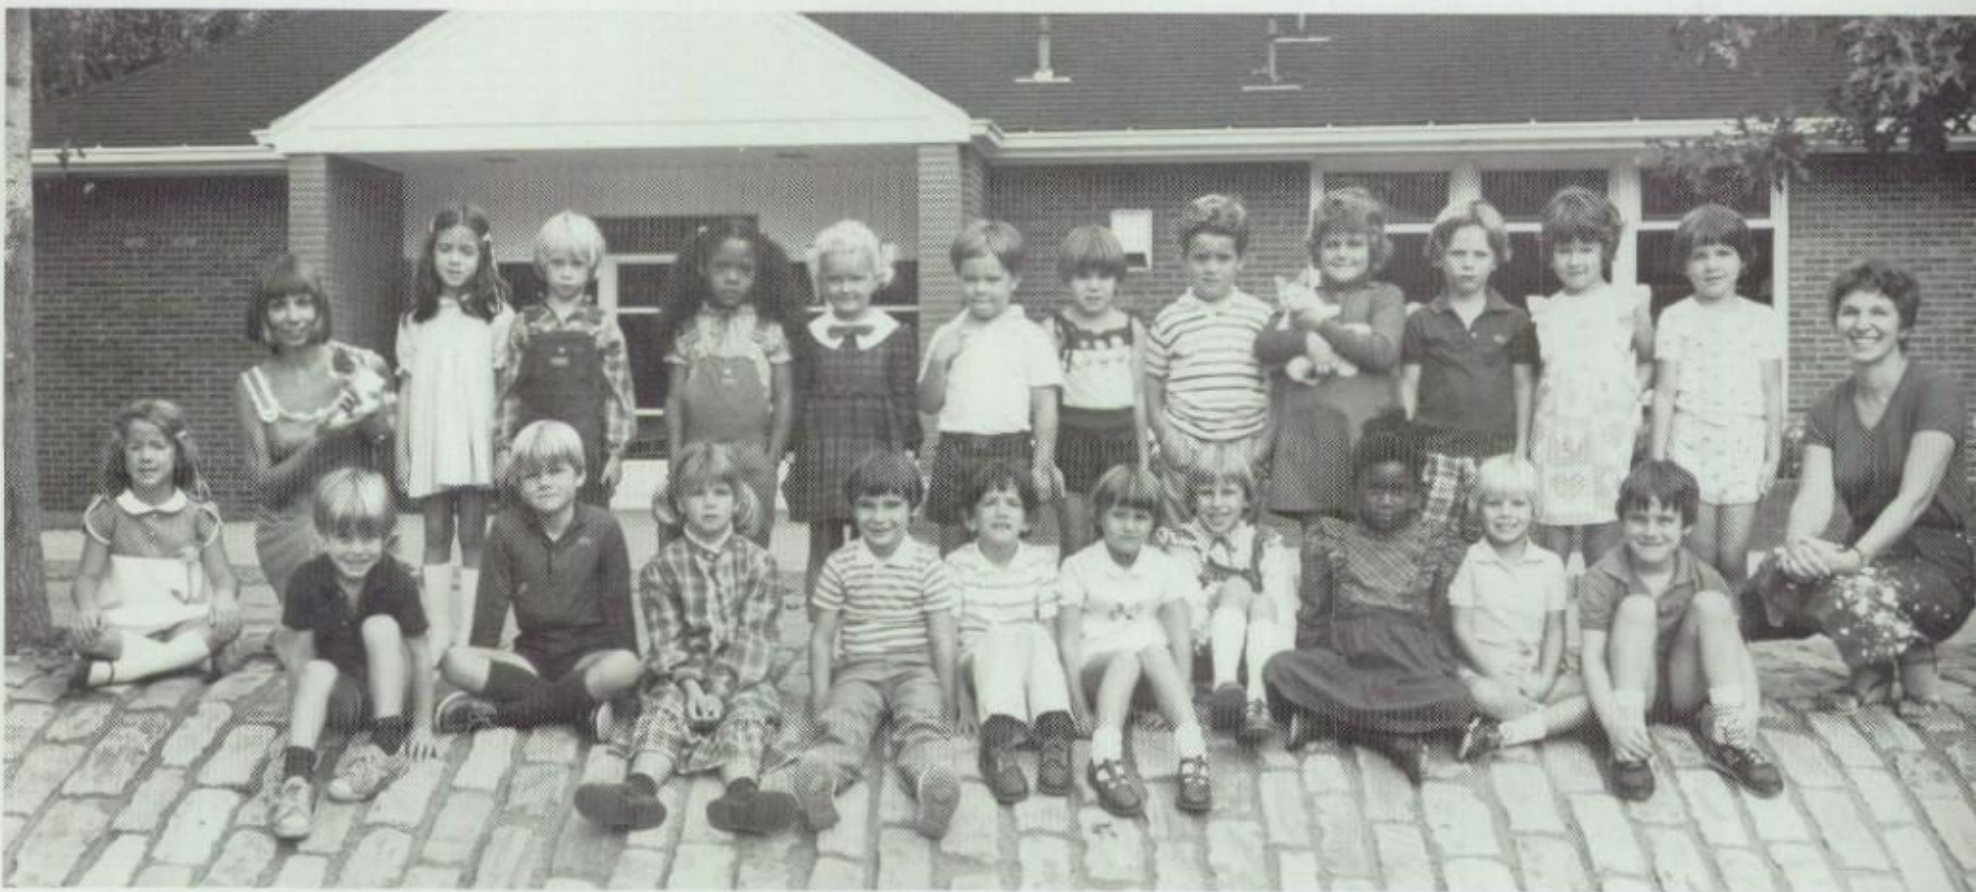

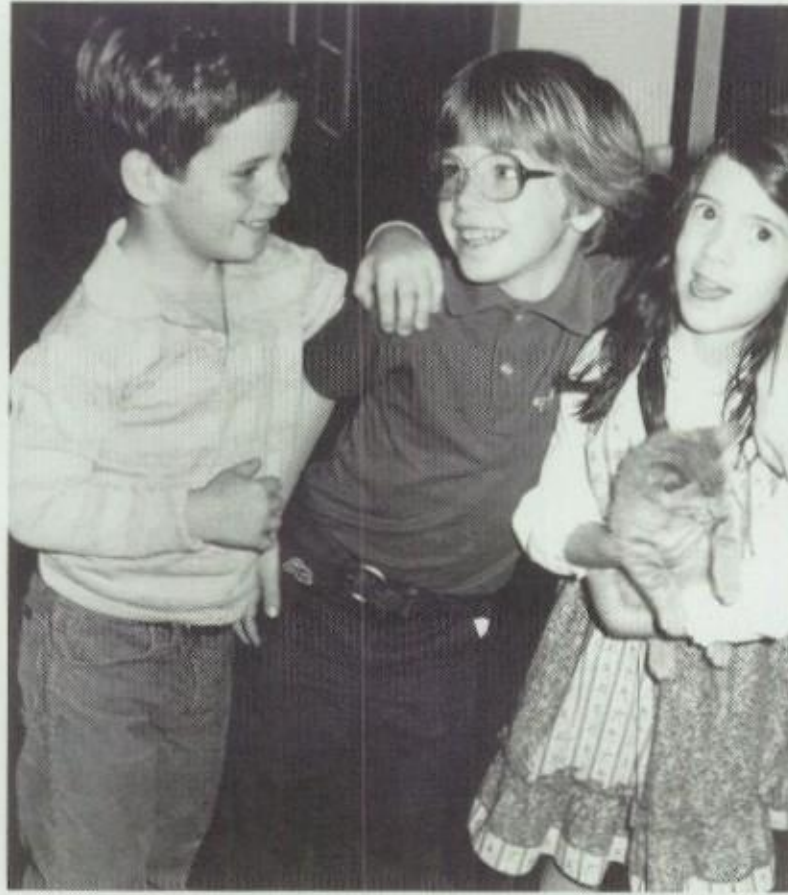

Front Row: Miss Sipe, G. Fazio, K. Whitehead, R. Varsanik, R. Cassoff, E. Gross, K. Bower, B. Fisher, C. Parrington, L. Barry, T. Swope, C. Phillips, Mrs. Dugan. Back Row: M. Hutchinson, J. Ball, J. Witteman T. Sealarcio, F. Catalina, B. Johnston, W. Leety, M. Rogers, M. Northrop N. Scott. Missing: H. Morrow

Nursery schoolers started off their academic careers not only by studying in the classroom, but also by taking outdoor science trips to learn about their environment. Topics covered in the classroom ranged from the four food groups to the many types of animals. To enhance their curriculum, these little learners traveled to the Buhl science rooms to see the trains.

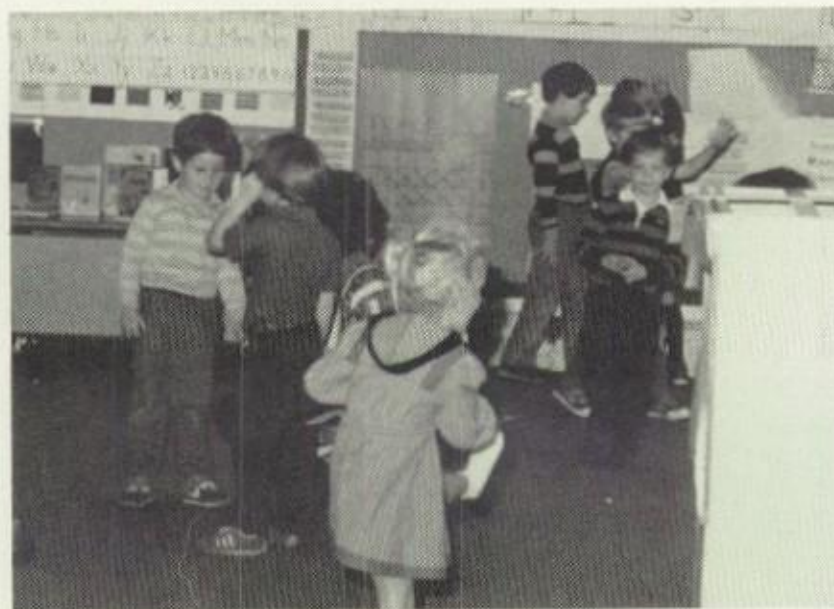

Reading, 'Riting, 'Rithmetic

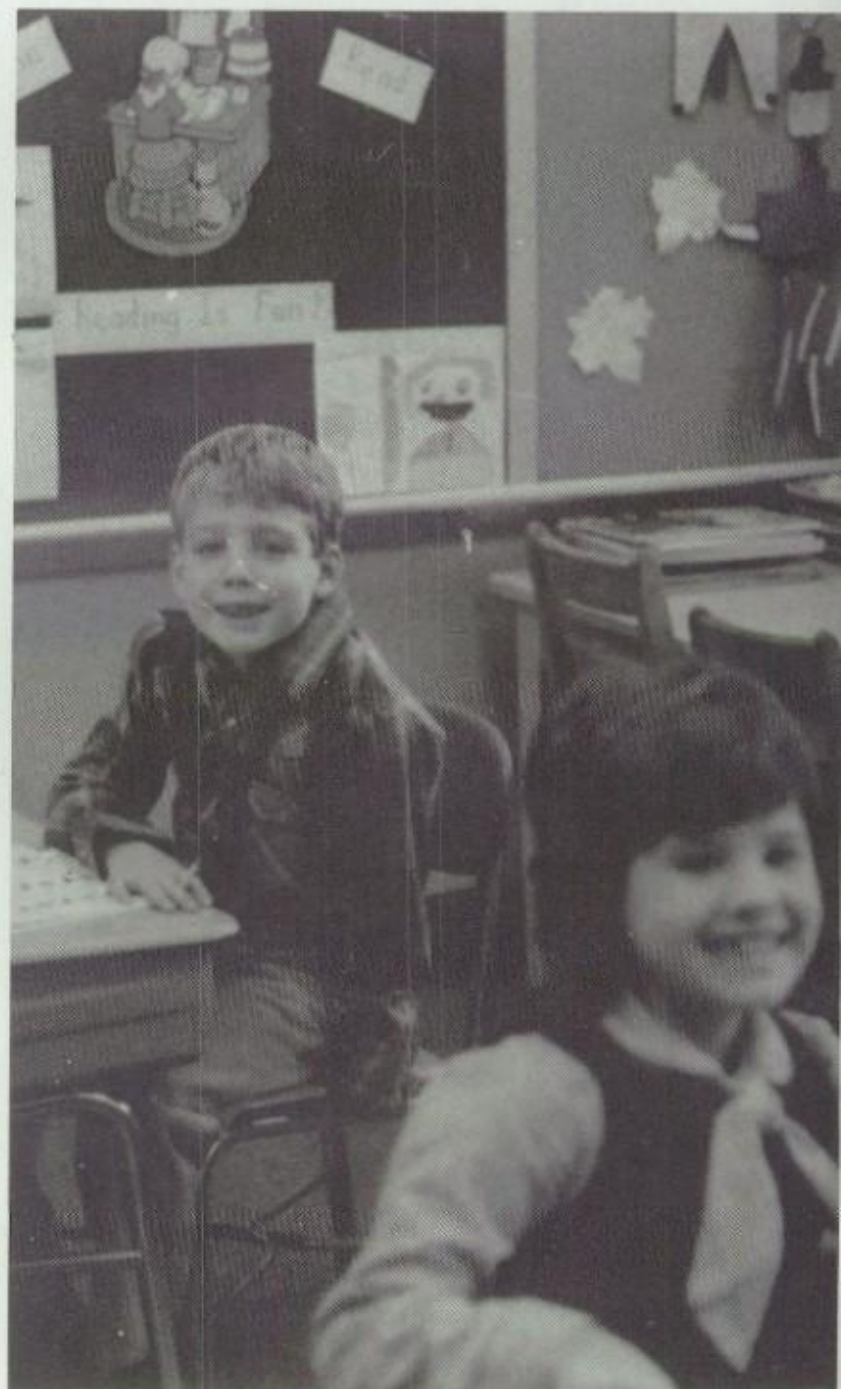

Front Row: J. Hetherington, C. Platt, A. Thompson, R. Roth, S. Fox, C. Baker, S. Adams, Q. Cobb, C. Eberle, N. Crawley.
Back Row: E. Fontana, Mrs. Nagel, M. Gregg, E. Nash, L. Malone, K. Bream, J.B. Lockheart, J. Nix, N. Barry, S. Schneider, J. Sadd, E. Gilfillan, M. Wickwire, Mrs. Stewart.

The Kindergarteners enjoyed a wide variety of activities during their second year at the Academy. Upon their visit to the Chalfant's farm, the youngsters rode ponies, picked apples, and petted sheep in an effort to learn about life on a farm. Other field trips consisted of traveling to Old Economy at Christmas time, and to Carnegie Museum. Daily activities included Mathematics, English, snack-time, music-time, and the favorite, play-time.

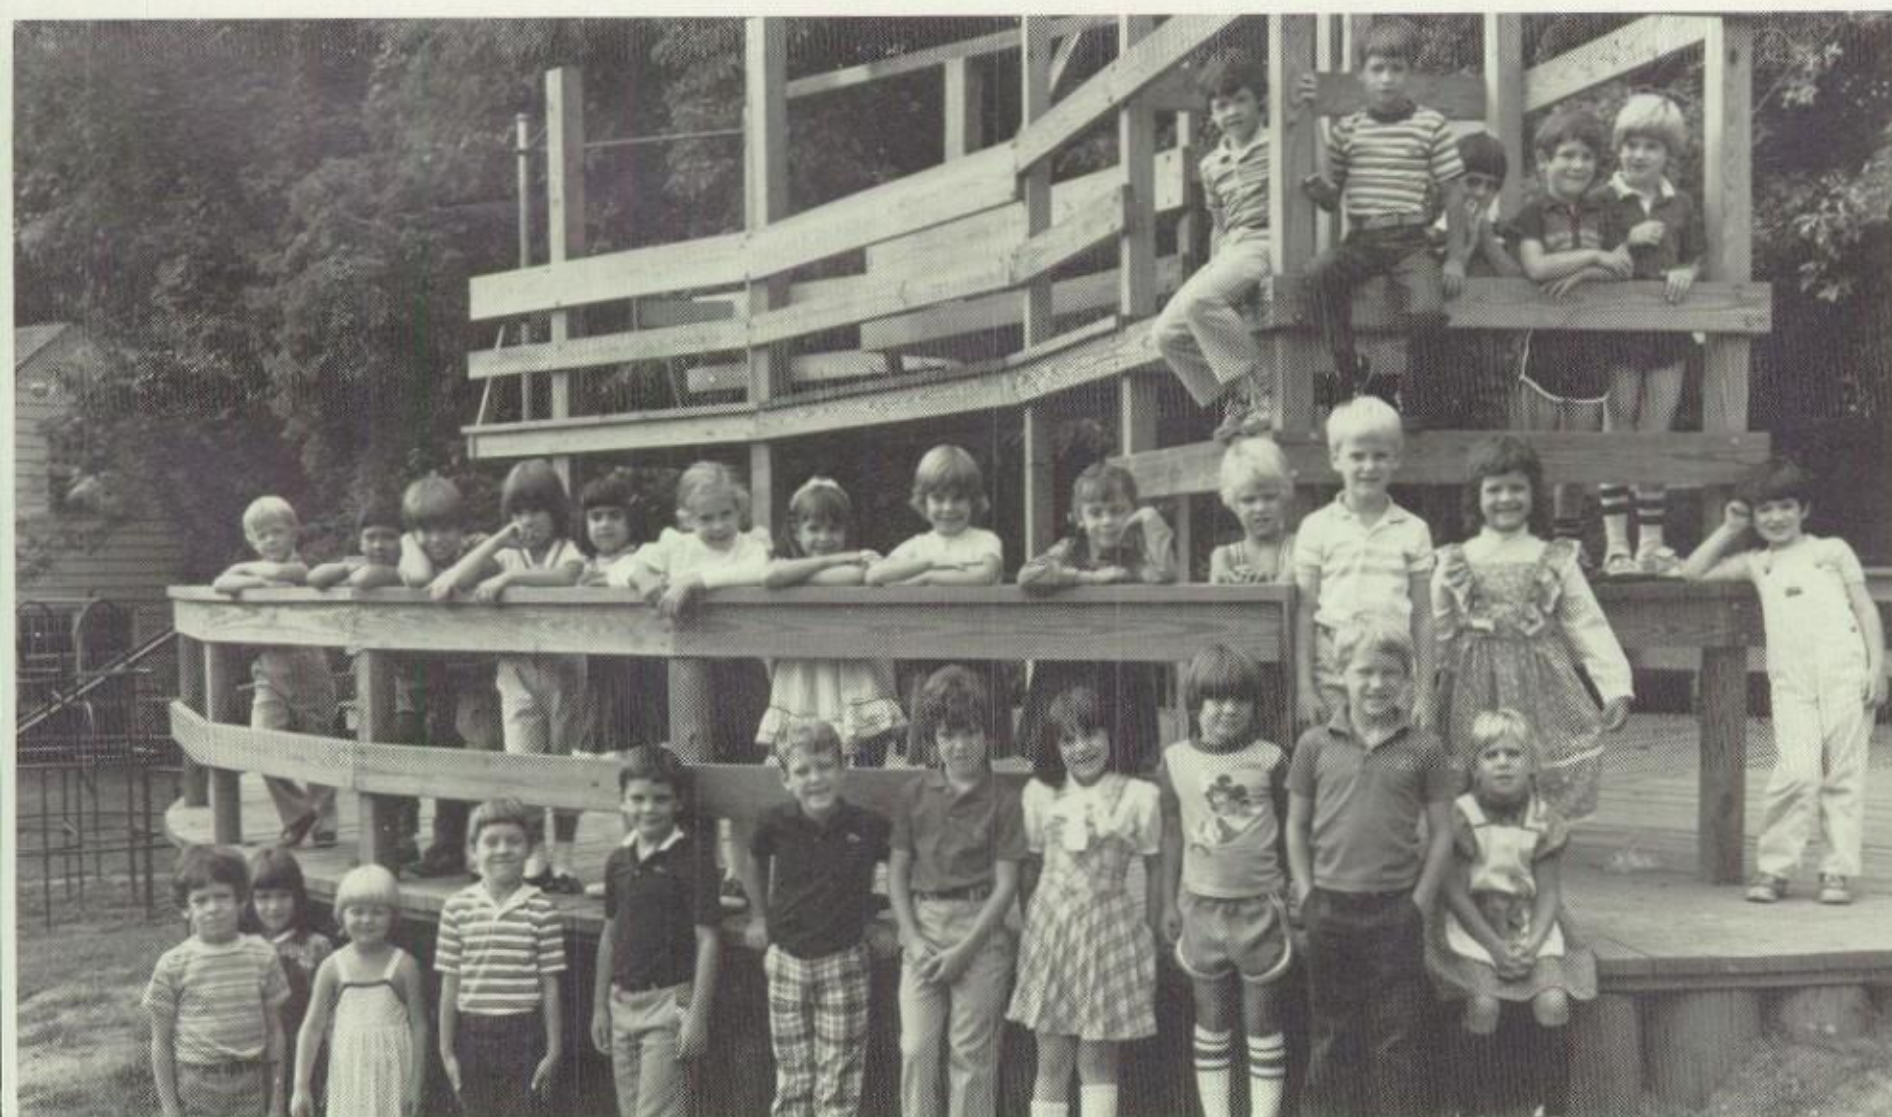

One In A Million

This year's energetic group of first graders never ran out of things to do. Besides learning the basic skills of reading, writing, and mathematics, they enjoyed studying poetry and drawing pictures. For the first time they received definite homework assignments that were given on Monday and were to be turned in on Thursday. One of their activities was a field trip to the Morris Kaufmann Tiny Tots Concert in Squirrel Hill where they saw "It's a Small World". With new goals and responsibilities, the first graders experienced an eventful and productive year.

Front Row: J. Chandler, E. Johnson, J. Stuart, C. Kavic, D. Ozdinec, F. Schneider, S. Popovich, J. Walters, J. Knotts, J. Simons, H. Michael Middle Row: R. Rogers, P. Cadena, J. Tarn, G. Todd, R. Second To None

Front row: B. Madia, A. Evert, W. Humphrey, K. Barry Middle row: A. Caesar, M. Knotts, M. Snyder, F. Knight P. Meub, P. Mustari, A. Bean, J. Bojalad, E. Sadd. Back row: M. Biernat, A. Smith, B. Bullerdick, M. Morris, J. O'Malley, G. Walters, D. Jackson, K. Thorne, B. Edwards, M. Eberle, J. Shively.

The second graders concentrated much of their efforts on the subject of science this year. They were members of a Science Club in which they covered six major units and sometimes received guest speakers who provided further information on a particular unit of study. In addition, during the dinosaur unit they went on a field trip to Carnegie Museum. Second graders also rode the Gateway Clipper through the Emsworth Locks and participated in eight outdoor education nature walks in the area.

Three's A Charm

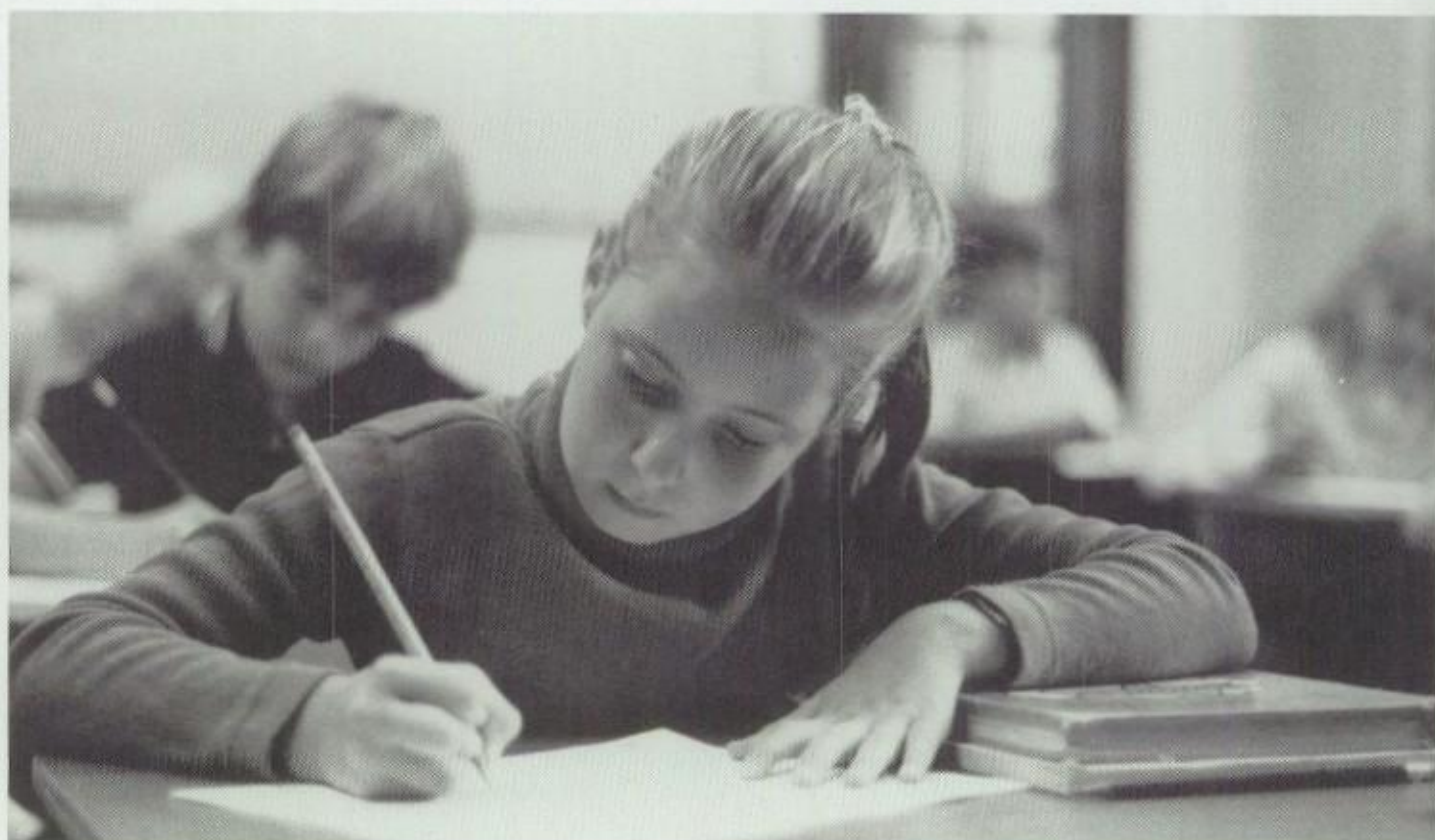

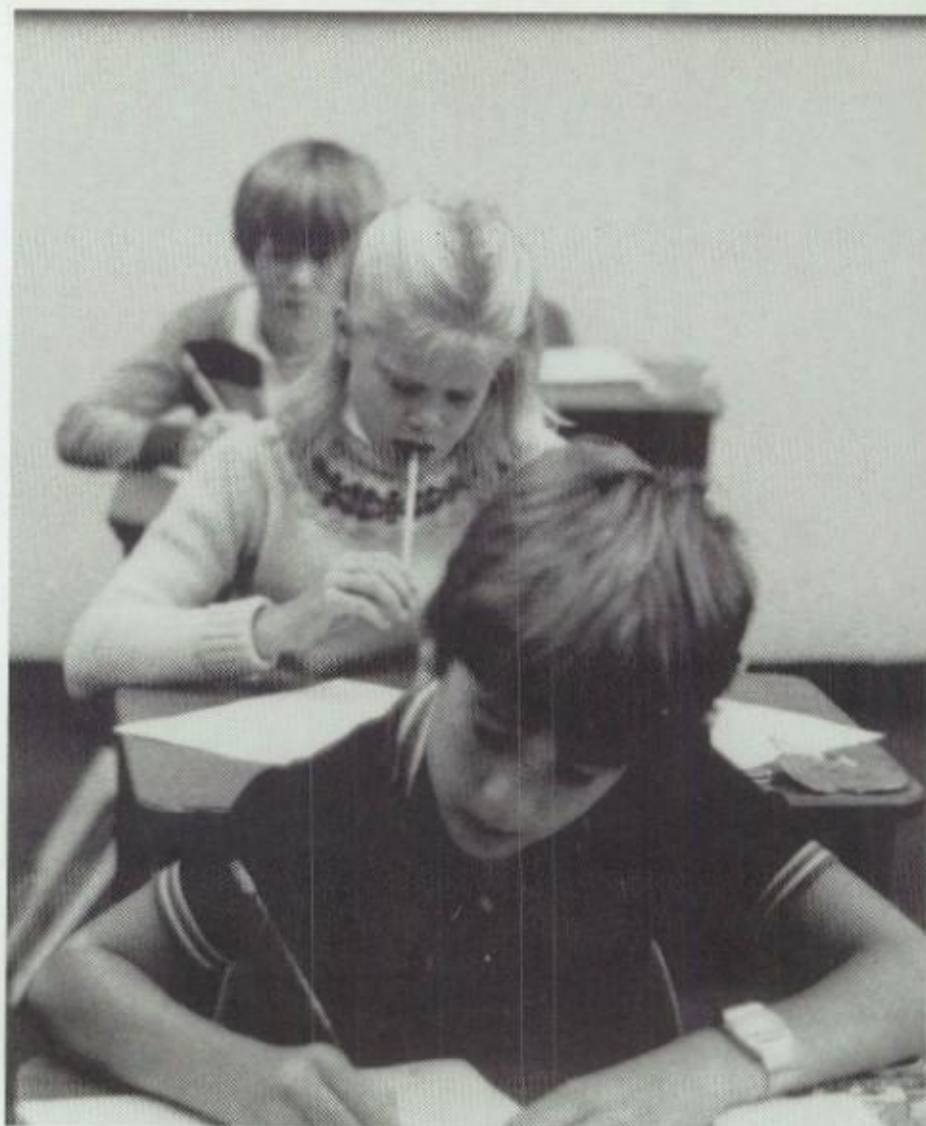

This year was a time of growth for third graders as they learned to develop responsibility, citizenship, and independence. In addition, teachers stressed the importance of using time wisely. In this way, students could gain the amount of leisure time necessary to discover a variety of outside reading sources.

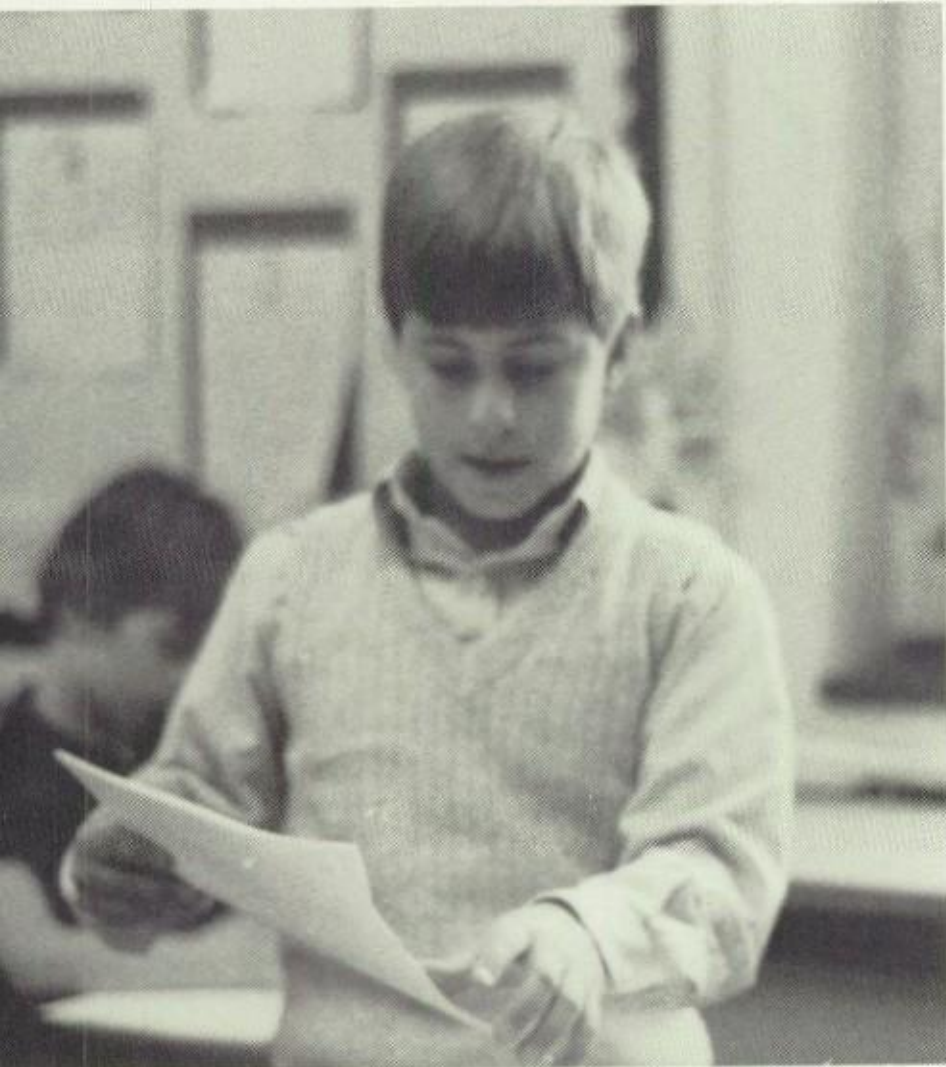

Front Row: L. VanAllen, H. Snyder, G. Sacco, G. Matthews, D. Sadd, M. Spanos, H. Shannonhouse. Middle Row: L. Semple, B. O'Donnell, D. Rockwell, N. Powers, S. Desai, J. Rose, B. Stewart, E. Traupman, M. DiDomenico, E. Fabry, M. Pittman, J. Matthews. Back Row: S. Patuc, J. Moore, T. O'Malley, M. Rogers, A. Ball, C. Tillson, B. Strohmeyer, W. Billeter, P. deHaven, N. Nagel, C. Matterson, K. Anderson, K. Strohmeyer. Absent: S. Katsur.

The fourth grade proved this year that they could learn and have fun at the same time. They added life to their book reports by dressing up as their favorite characters from the books they read, and they wrote autobiographies to get to know each other better. They also sent weather balloons containing their names and addresses and have received letters in return.

For They Are Jolly Good Fellows

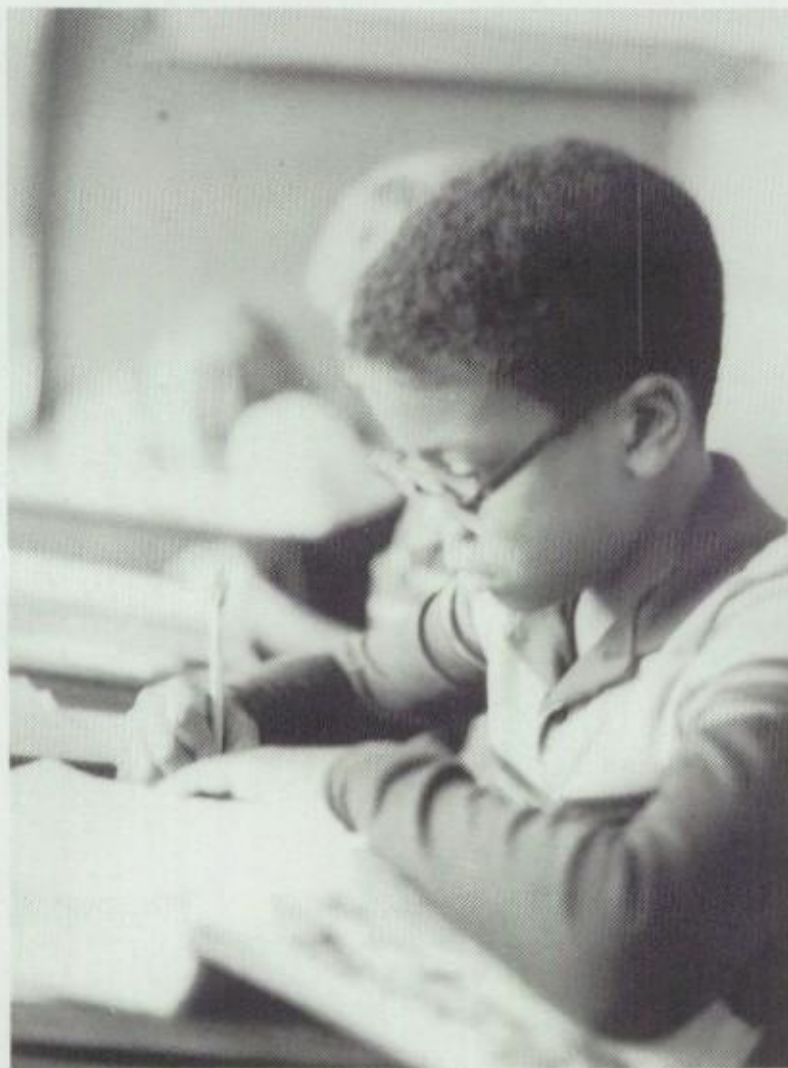

Front Row: J. Streppa, A. Masri, J. Wu, F. Schroeder, V. Knight, J. Hannaway, Mrs. Paine, J. Obrosky, C. Churchill, T. Cincala, D. Brandys, K. Stuart, B. Batchelor, A. Gregg, L. Matthews, M. Pittman, Mrs. James, S. Bhatnagar, S. Harris, J. Gebhardt, V. Humphrey, St. C. Okie, N. Biernat, Missing: M. Kopf, P. Wittekamp

We Can Make The World Go 'Round

The fifth grade had an educational and interesting year. They discovered molecules, atoms, and the meaning of space in science class as well as the history and government of our nation in social studies. Other areas covered included reading, mathematics, language and spelling. To enrich their academic background, the fifth grade travelled to Fort Pitt and Carnegie Museum. Later in the year, they visited the science museum where they learned about solar energy.

Front Row: B. Vansca, J. Kardell, H. Hunt, J. Micheal, T. McCarthy, K. Carter. Middle Row: B. Williams, M. Jacoby, J. Rutzler, M. Glenn, D. Nelson, S. Morris, B. Smith, B. Gorden, C. Brandow, T. The sixth graders enjoyed the seniority they gained during their last year in the Lower School, but they were also excited at the prospect of entering in the Middle School. By setting a good example for other students and learning to cope with increasing amounts of homework, the sixth graders adequately prepared themselves for next year's transition.

Middle School

Paul, C. Melodia, K. Mikita, C. Crowley, S. Humphrey, D. Popovich, B. Moore, R. Peirce, J. DeChambeau, F. Zimmerman, J. Brodmekel, S. Garren.

Mean Cats

The Seventh Graders were quickly accepted into the whirl of Middle School activities. They experienced the Word Wealth tests, the confusion of Pre-Algebra, and the joy of learning a second language. Despite the many adjustments that had to be made, they came out on top.

We'll Chase Our Dreams

Through good times and bad, the eighth graders managed to conquer their second year of Middle School. Even though they were busy decorating their lockers with the utmost of care, they did find time to complete their homework. Well adjusted now to the Middle School, the eighth grade have proved their worth.

First Row Sitting: K. Garland, B. Powers, A. Evert, T. Davis, P. McCrady, J. Cross, E. Short, K. Matey, A. Stewart, A. Urban, J. Symons, A. Carnevali, M. Montgomery, L. deHaven, E. Clancy, N. Movin On Up

The ninth grade, this year, had many intelligent students striving to the top with the vision of the SENIOR SCHOOL dancing in front of their eyes. The students excelled in sports as well as academics. Even though they often had their walkmans blaring, they kept up with their hectic schedules and busy social lives.

In addition to all this, they did manage to have some fun. With their clenched fists and waving thumbs, the ninth-graders also added some new words, such as DA-BEE and TAH, to their vocabulary.

It is very difficult to tell the difference between
a wave hello and a wave good-bye,
for they look so very similar;
an odd flick of the arm and outstretch of
hand;
it is also so as we are growing up,
We see ourselves wave,
is it good-bye to our youth,
or hello to adulthood.

"She did what?!" E. Goehring

The sophomore class accomplished many things in the 82-83 school year. Some of the many activities were various theme oriented dances, ski trips, and candy-grams. Fund raising was the primary concern in light of the coming year's prom expenses. A light-bulb sale constituted the major fund-raising project undertaken. Their vigor and enthusiasm sustained them throughout their first year in the Senior School.

"Quick! Look cool! Here she comes!" S. Ray, B. James.

"So what do you think of Reaganomics?" B. DeHaven

"I'm so confused!" C. Standish, J. Reynolds

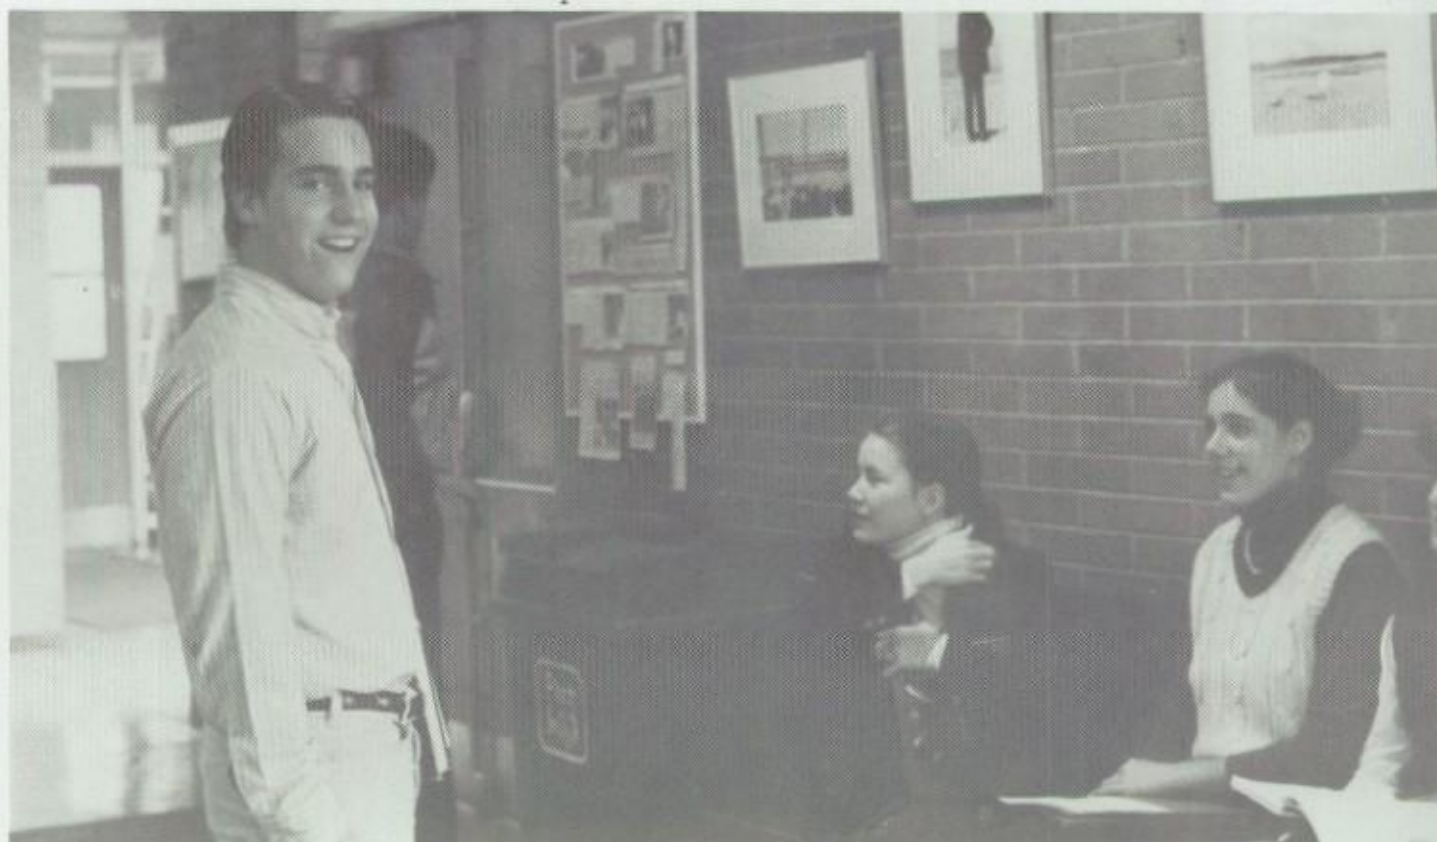

With the sudden realization that college would soon be upon them, the Juniors dove into their work with newly found enthusiasm. Also, they participated feverishly in bake sales, dances, leaf raking and especially in the grapefruit sale in order to raise money for this year's prom.

Their competitiveness emerged in both the classroom and on the playing fields. Others developed skills in such diverse areas as dramatics, art, singing and skiing.

"You mean we have a test today?" N. Craig.

"Aaaay . . . Fonz and the chicks." M. Dugan, K. Edson, H. Gregory.

You Are The Sun, You Are The Rain

Sewickley Academy for Ecological Research, or SAFER as it's better known, continued its collection of data on the Little Sewickley Creek Watershed. Throughout the year, they kept track of such things as pH, dissolved solids and Chloroform counts. In this way, they could determine if any changes in the creek resulted from near-by houses or construction. The students received a great deal of research credibility when Greene Engineering, a company which has been keeping very close track of Little Sewickley Creek, came up with relatively the same results as SAFER.

Climb Every Mountain

The Trailblazers had another busy year. Activities ranged from a soggy weekend at Dolly Sods trying to find the best way across a very full creek to a talk by a rock-climbing expert to the showing of ecological films. A new concept for the group this year has been the very active student leadership, led by Nina Roth. It has been a great help to Mrs. Macdonald, adviser to the group, and has meant increased participation by the students in the planning and implementing of the various activities. The years activities culminated, as in the past, by a week-long trip to Pok-O-MacCready Outdoor Education Center in the Adirondacks.

Très Bien Ensemble

Quebec Exchange Group

This year the exciting French exchange program continued again to both France and Quebec. Twenty Academy juniors and seniors left March 10th for a three-week stay in Melun, France, approximately 45 km. outside of Paris. Karen Coleman was in charge of the exchange. Christy Dillon left five days later with 8 students for Hull, Quebec. In addition to attending the Lycée Polyvalente Mont Bleu in Hull, the students traveled to Montreal, Quebec City and Ottawa.

Most of these students belonged to the French Club. Their experiences with the club and their trip taught each student about French lifestyle, arts, history, and food. Most importantly, the trip gave each student the chance to have a new friend abroad.

France Exchange Group

The German students, in the spring of 1982, traveled to Germany. Academy students were hosted by German families, and attended the Erasmus Grasser Gymnasium. The students learned about German culture, language, and tradition on their tour.

Nach Berlin

We, The People

This year, the Cirrirulum Committee investigated the ranking, weighting, and grading systems by gathering student opinion and researching the systems themselves. Having finished the investigations, the committee formulated solutions and proposed them to school council. The rest of the Committee's time was spent in fervent debate over the divinity of Roger Daltory and the fate of Quinten McCorde.

The School Disciplinary Committee primarily concentrated on two projects which involved book loss and the school's litter problem. The highlight of the year was the second annual "Custodian Day." Linda Pangersis, the head of the committee, followed the plans from last into this year.

The Community Affairs Committee was very active in serving the local community this past year. Some of the various projects undertaken were recycling at the Sewickley YMCA every other month, participating in a fund-raising walk-a-thon for the D. T. Watson Home, and decorating Christmas trees at the Verland Foundation. The members of the committee were very enthusiastic about their work, and those returning next year hope to accomplish even more.

The Campus Improvement Committee was very busy performing various tasks about the Academy to help improve its appearance. They planted approximately 80 flower bulbs, donated by Mrs. Charles Roth, around the Senior School. In addition, a student art gallery featuring a wall done by Senior Schoolers as a collage expressing their feelings and ideas. The final project focused about the litter problem. The committee decorated trash cans in order to lure people into putting their garbage in the cans and not on the ground.

The School Council Activities Committee had a very successful year. The size and spirit of the club made all the school activities enjoyable and exciting. Monthly spirit days, including the annual Bizarre and Extreme Day and a well organized Talent Show helped the school year move right along. The purpose of the club was to entertain and offer events to take the pressure out of school. The committee spent numerous hours baking goodies, thinking of skits, and keeping the spirit of the Academy high.

The Seventh Pillar

The Seventh Pillar kept up its outstanding tradition of quality once again this year. Their thoroughness in reporting the various happenings about the school was much appreciated by students, faculty, parents, and alumni.

This year, Pendragon was organized, once again, with the help of Mrs. Reteshka. Everyday after school, two or three staffers remained in room 101 to help Senior School students. Members of Pendragon concentrated on working with seniors writing college essays, while students from Miss Markel's Exposition classes also sought aid in correcting "green boxes."

Poof . . . The Magic Dragon

Paperback Writers

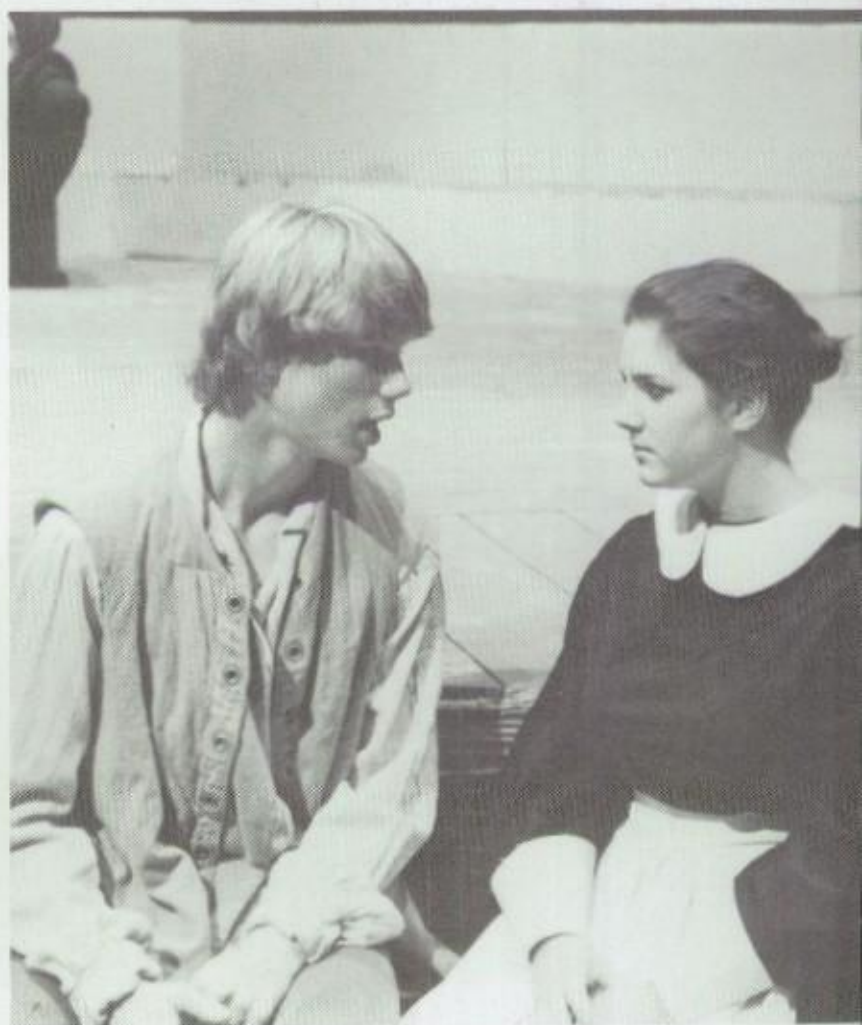

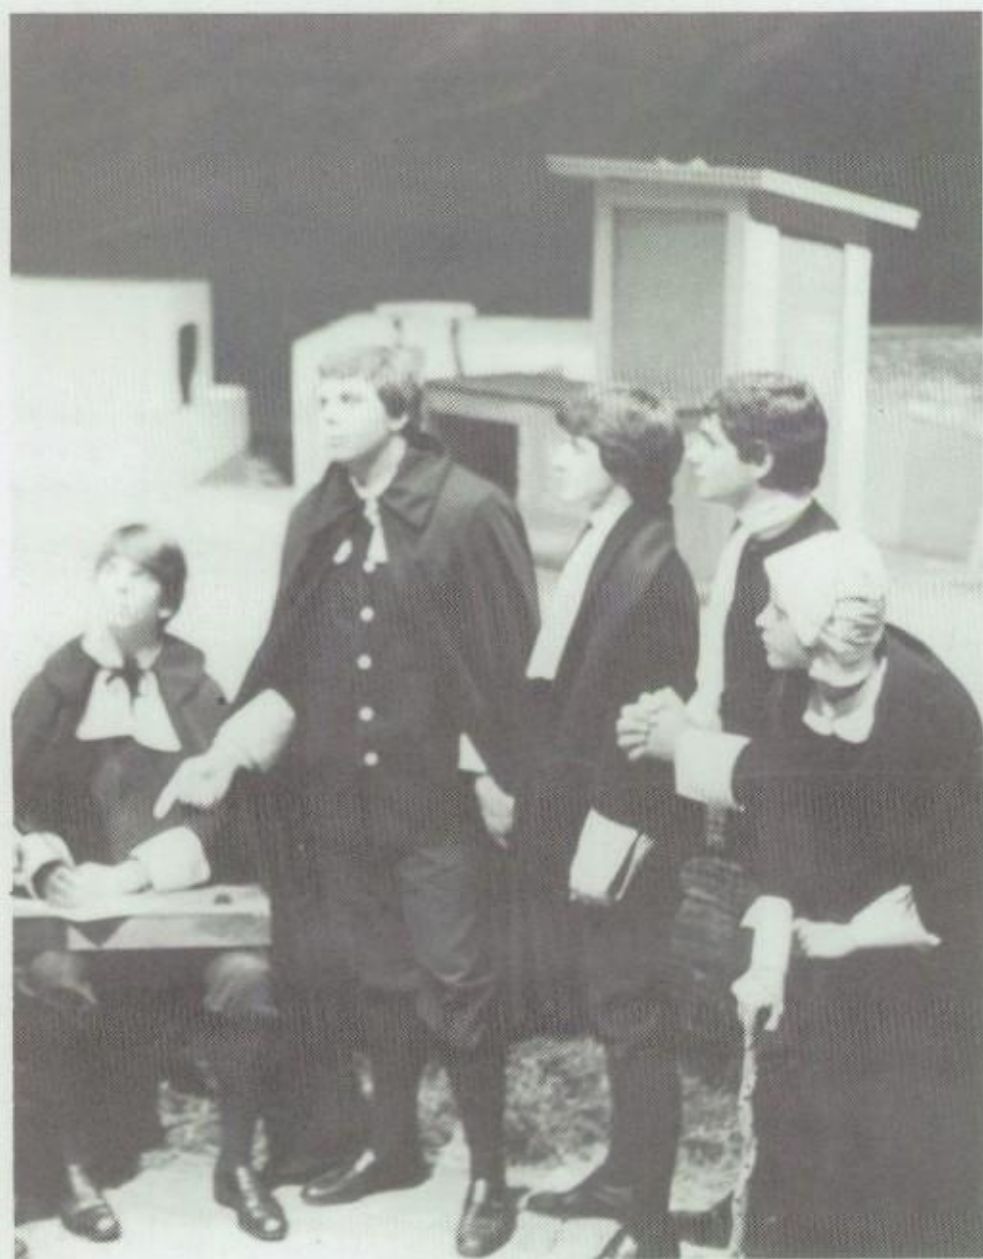

The Arts Magazine planned to publish two issues this year. The first contained poems, artwork, short stories and essays dealing with stress and effects on the student. The second issue was released in the end of May, was a miscellaneous conglomeration of student work.

Talk, Talk, Talk To Me

Show Biz

The Drama Department, as usual, was very busy this year. In the fall, a very dramatic production, THE CRUCIBLE, was put on and received smashing reviews. Later in the year, students preformed the one act OF POEMS, YOUTH AND SPRING, an avant-garde statement on the young love. Finally, in March, students banded together and, under the direction of Mr. Melodia, performed THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE. In addition to all these productions, the school was further artistically enhanced by the appearance of such people as poet Samuel Hazo and Mark Thompson, a world renowned mime.

SHENANGO INCORPORATED

RYAN HOMES CONGRATULATES THE CLASS OF

1983

Tradition means many things to us...
and to you.

You have just completed some of the most important years of your life. The friendships developed.
The knowledge acquired. And the maturity gained in completing your high school years becomes the foundation for your future.

At Ryan, home building has been a tradition since 1948.

For more than 30 years we've built quality homes and that's something we're proud of.
Because we've been able to help a lot of people find their future, and keep the tradition of American homeownership alive.

We wish you success and good fortune
in the years to come.

Ryan Homes, Inc.

In the year 1982, bitter belligerence exploded into active violence throughout the world. Lebanon, and indeed the world, was horrified and outraged by the assault on the Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut by the Israelis. Gradually the world learned of an even more shocking horror, as news of the slaughter of PLO refugees by Christians Philangists was obtained. For almost eleven weeks Argentines unsuccessfully fought Britain for the possession of the Falkland Islands, in a battle that turned a luxury cruise ship into a vessel of destruction and claimed just under 1000 lives. Terrorists cried for attention in both England and France. Men and horses alike were victims of an IRA bomb explosion in London; Europe was witness to powerful anti-Jewish sentiment, evidenced for instance in an attack on a Jewish restaurant in Paris which left six people killed. America was left shaken by the deaths of seven people, victims of an unknown murderer in an unsolved case of cyanide-laced Tylenol.

America was having her own difficulties. Economic distress plagued the country with unemployment reaching 10.8 percent, the highest it's been since World War II. Companies folded under the burden of bankruptcy, and Social Security was forced to borrow money. One day, however, the Dow Jones rocketed to 1065.49. Anti-nuclear protesters held a rally in New York City and were slightly appeased by the delay of the MX missile program. Due to personal and "policy related" friction, Alexander Haig resigned from the position of Secretary of State and was replaced by George Shultz.

Technology, at least, progressed. The Columbia Space Shuttle launched its first satellite into earth's orbit, and Barney Clark underwent successful surgery to implant an artificial heart. It has become an age of computers, evidenced not only in the popularity of video games but in the 3 million personal computers in homes and schools.

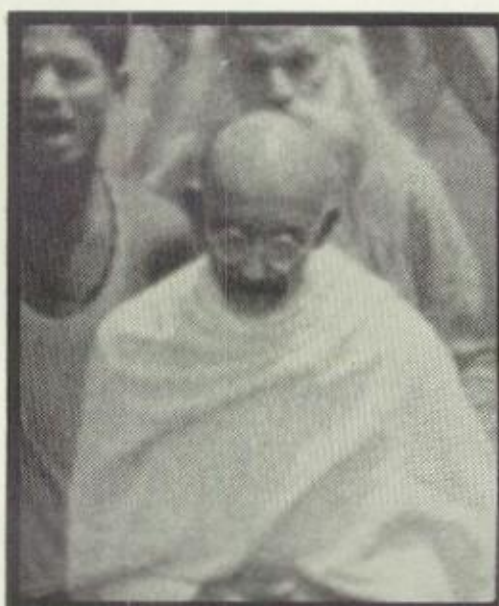

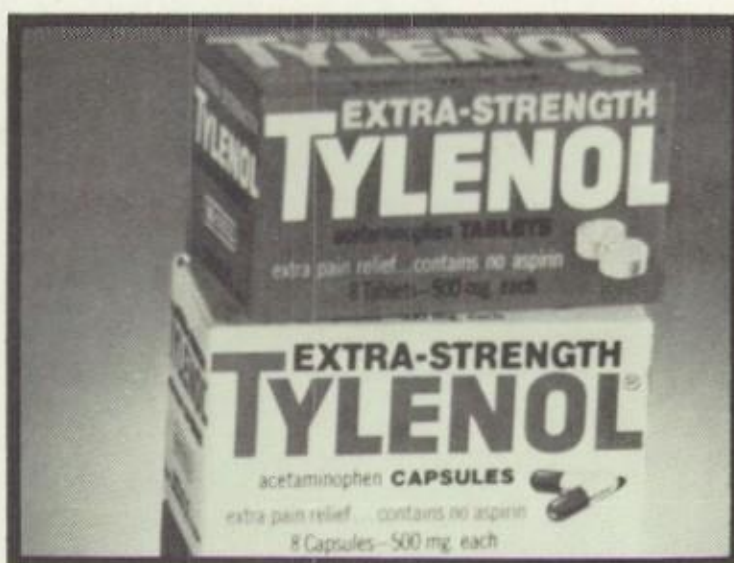

The world lost Leonid Brezhnev, Princess Grace of Monaco, Henry Fonda, Ingrid Bergman and John Belushi, but gained Prince William, first child of Charles and Diana. But while the royal family was beaming over the new baby, they were blushing over Prince Andrew's associations with Koo Stark, a famous actress known for her blue movies. John DeLorean, the self-made millionaire who built his own sports car plant, was blushing too, when he was caught conspiring to acquire 220 pounds of cocaine. Former Nazi Commander Klaus Barbie will be brought to trial for his crimes in the second world war against Jews. Fans of one of the most popular and successful TV shows ever uttered a reluctant adieu when *M*A*S*H* was aired for the final two and a half hour episode on the last day of February. Jane Fonda preached the joys of sweat and muscle tone, first with her Workout Book, then on a record, and inevitably with a video cassette.

Theater-goers were treated to a dramatization of T.S. Eliot's poems in "Cats"; the Broadway hit was very expensive and even more popular. For those who were left with nothing to do for eight Sundays when the National Football League went on strike, "Ghandi", "Tootsie", and "Sophie's Choice" were superior and exciting options. But the real hit was an extra-terrestrial being with a long neck, a glowing finger, and no legs, with whom the gloomy nation fell hopelessly, and understandably, in love.
